INDEX.

Allan, Mr, his meteorological table for Elgin, year 1838, 397.
Arago, M., his historical eloge of J. Fourier, 1, 217.
———— his observations on thunder and lightning, 81, 275.
Arts, Society of, for Scotland, proceedings, 199.
Atmospherical phenomena, the more important, considered, by Professor Kaemtz, 244.
Atmospheric pressure, effects of, on the tidal waters of Devon and Cornwall, 415.
Asiatic Society of Bengal, Journal of, for March 1838, 213—for April, May, June, July, 1838, 432.

Barry, Martin, Dr, researches on embryology, first series, 203.
Botanical Society, proceedings of, 429.
Bischof, Gustav, Professor, on the natural history of volcanos and earthquakes, 25, 347.
Brown, Mr, on the mucilage of fuci, 409.

Carlisle, Anthony, Sir, on arborescent figures in the two divisions of animal and vegetable structures, and in mineral formations, 344.

Dalyell, John Graham, Sir, on a singular mode of propagation among the lower animals, 152.
Dunbar, William, Rev., meteorological observations at Applegarth in Dumfriesshire, 396.
Daubeny, Charles, M. D., objections to the chemical theory of volcanos, 291.
Deshayes, G. P. Mr, his Traité Elementaire de Conchyliologie, noticed, 212.
Dowie, James, Mr, observations on boots and shoes, with reference to the structure and action of the human foot, 401.

Forbes, James, Professor, account of an intermitting brine spring discharging carbonic acid gas, near Kissingen in Bavaria, 306.
Fourier, Joseph, eloge of, by M. Arago, 1, 217.
Fuchs', Nepomuk, chemical views regarding the formation of rocks, which seem to afford new arguments in favour of Neptunism, 182.

Galbraith, William, Mr, on geodetical surveying and trigonometrical levelling, 158.
Graham, Professor, description of several new and rare plants which have lately flowered in the neighbourhood of Edinburgh, chiefly in the Royal Botanic Garden, 194, 419.
Gray, Lord, his meteorological table for 1838, 398.

Hunte, Charles Le, Mr, on the geology of the neighbourhood of Kelso, 144.

Kaemtz, L. F., Professor, remarks on the more important atmospherical phenomena, 244.
Kelso, observations on its geology, 144.
Kissingen, intermitting brine spring of, described by Professor Forbes, 306.

Lea, Isaac, observations on the genus unio, noticed, 213.
Lightning and thunder, observations on, by Arago, 81, 275.

Maclaren, Mr, geology of Fife and the Lothians, noticed, 431.
Melloni, M., upon the alleged influence which the roughness and the polish of surfaces exercise upon the emissive power of bodies, in reference to the experiments of Professor Sir John Leslie, 299.
Murchison, Mr, on the silurian system, noticed, 430.

Neptunism, views that appear to be in favour of, by N. Fuchs of Munich, 182.

Patents, list of, granted in Scotland from 15th September to 14th December 1838, 214—from 14th December to 15th March 1839, 434.

Royal Society of Edinburgh, proceedings of, 422.
Russell, John Scott, F. R. S., on the vibration of suspension bridges and other structures, and the means of preventing injury from this cause, 386.

Sang, Edward, F. R. S. E., notice of an erroneous method of using the theodolite, with a strict analysis of the effects of various arrangements of readers, 173—on a method of obtaining the greatest possible degree of exactitude from the data of a survey, 327.
Shepard, Charles, M. D., report of the geological survey of Connecticut, noticed, 213.
Smith's Zoology of Southern Africa, noticed, 434.
Stevenson, David, civil-engineer, sketch of the civil-engineering of North America, noticed, 206.

Thunder and lightning, observations on, by Arago, 81, 275.

Ure, Andrew, M. D., dictionary of arts, manufactures, and mines, noticed, 213.

Wauchope, Robert, Capt. R. N., on quantity of saline matter in sea water in lat. 0°, 33′ N., and long. 8°, 16′ E.; also result of experiments on temperature of the sea at great depths, and account of gale of wind off the Cape of Good Hope, 399.
Wernerian Natural History Society, proceedings of, 426—memoirs of, for 1831–37, noticed, 208.

Zetterstedt, J. W., Insecta Lapponica, noticed, 209.
Zoology of the voyage of H. M. Beagle, noticed, 433.

PRINTED BY NEILL & CO. EDINBURGH.